

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing this letter to express my interest in being part of the [REDACTED] Spring Week program. My interest in finance started early on, with my grandfather introducing me to his work within the financial industry as CEO of a holding company in German speaking, city. After moving to Scandinavian country and finishing high school, I Started to work for [REDACTED] There I took the opportunity to get a lot of insight in the corporate finance department, and was instantly hooked. Working on deals and transactions in a fast paced environment in teams of bright people, got me extremely intrigued. Therefore I joined [REDACTED] [REDACTED], immediately upon entering my studies. I am now involved in [REDACTED] as a Research Analyst and even more dedicated to pursue a career within corporate finance.

Applying to the [REDACTED] Spring Week was an obvious choice for me because of the firm's leading position within investment banking as well as its long tradition and global strength. After researching your core values and corporate culture, [REDACTED] [REDACTED]. I can express my excitement about the possible opportunity of joining such a successful and diverse company as [REDACTED].

As previously mentioned working as a Consultant [REDACTED] during my gap year, providing accounting and financial services for companies and working closely with clients. This granted me valuable analytical, financial and team working skills, and more importantly enhanced my competence in accounting. In my role as a Research Analyst [REDACTED] I work within a team to provide company specific research on [REDACTED] listed [REDACTED] companies. The work involves valuations using the DCF model, industry coverage and market analysis for the individual companies.

A copy of my resume is enclosed for your reference. I would gladly welcome the opportunity to attend the [REDACTED] Spring Week program. Thank you very much for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

[REDACTED]
