

Dear [REDACTED],

I am a graduating student in a MSc in [REDACTED] at the [REDACTED] and I am writing to apply for an internship at your [REDACTED] or [REDACTED] office. My availability will be from the middle of September.

Since my choice of studying Economics and Management at the University of [REDACTED] for my bachelor, I had a major goal to develop a broad set of well-rounded skills. As I am now to start my career, I believe that management consulting would be the perfect industry for that. This is because the continuous exposure to different industries, projects, and clients truly allows a lifetime of learning experiences. A.T. Kearny is not only a prestigious and iconic firm, but one that really grants exponential learning for its consultants. My conversation with [REDACTED], a current consultant in the [REDACTED] office, reinforced my belief that this separates A.T. Kearney by other top consulting firms, and is my central reason for applying. His description of the collaborative environment of the firm, and the interaction between consultants and the client for problem solving, convinced me that A.T. Kearney has top attributes for knowledge-sharing between its consultants, and effective learning.

My projects at the “[REDACTED] student-run consultancy” (the pro-bono student-run consultancy of [REDACTED]) and Aiesec – where I was respectively part of a group of 6 and 5 people – have made me a strong team member and partner for my colleagues. During such projects, and through many experiences abroad and in new environments, I gained strong interpersonal skills that make me fit for working with clients. I had the chance to test my suitability to consulting in a 3 months project at the “[REDACTED] same student-run consultancy”. Here, I developed the business model for our client to suit a project of expansion from regional to national level ([REDACTED] Place of expansion). The client’s feedback for the work presented was very positive, and this reinforced my belief of having potential for a career in consulting. I am a driven and passionate individual, as demonstrated by my growth-oriented academic path, and I would really live and breathe the opportunity of employing this energy for A.T. Kearney, to help achieve its ambitious goals as depicted in its Vision 2020.

I would be available to discuss my qualifications with you in further detail. I have enclosed a copy of my resume. Thank you in advance for your time and consideration.
